

Student Prerequisites for Acceptance Into the Soul Studies Transformation Life Coach Training

Below is a list of student prerequisites for acceptance into the Soul Studies Transformation Life Coach Training and/or Shamanic Minister credential.

- Student will have completed The Imagination Process to release childhood trauma, core issues and patterns from the body. Student may ask or be asked to engage the process multiple times to achieve this goal.
- Students continue personal healing and transformation through the Advanced Imagination Process during the entire training period.
- Student will demonstrate a new consciousness around victimhood from abuse, understanding and beginning to live as a conscious creator.
- Student will demonstrate the ability to be grounded - physically and emotionally stable, taking care of personal responsibilities and self care.
- Student will demonstrate and be able to commit to the time and energy for focus on academic tasks and assignments, such as the reading of books, writing papers, completing projects and similar academic tasks.
- Student will demonstrate the ability and commitment to the time and energy attending multiple groups and training sessions each week and month - arriving early for set up and supervision, remaining after groups for clean up and process work; showing up on time and being present.
- Student will demonstrate the ability to be teachable - aligned with the ethics and principles of the Imagination Process teachings, able to receive and follow direction; demonstrate vulnerability with a healthy ego; follow through with tasks; be in integrity with words and deeds.
- Student will be clear minded, free from mind altering drugs and medications natural or otherwise.
- Student will demonstrate ability to be a role model for Imagination Process participants, inspiring others to heal and transform through their personal stories Vs. being the authority or the healer, giving advice.
- Student must demonstrate the ability to financially commit to the training.